

Fund The Center for Native American Food Sovereignty

Artist rendering provided by DSGW Architecture

Dream of Wild Health

Help us plant the seeds for future generations.

The Center will help us further our work:

GROWING NATIVE FARMERS

Ten acres of the new farm will serve as an incubator for budding Native farmers, offering access to land, water, facilities, markets, and training, addressing a major opportunity gap in our region.

EXPANDING OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTH

This expansion will allow us to enhance our chef apprenticeships, youth social enterprise program, and school field trips, benefiting an additional 225 youth annually.

BUILDING INFRASTRUCTURE FOR NATIVE ORGANIZATIONS

Our programs serve as the connective tissue for dozens of our Native-led organizational partners with culturally-based lessons, Indigenous foods, and network leadership for our partners.

MODELING CLIMATE & ECOLOGICAL SOLUTIONS

With this expansion, we will incorporate practices such as agroforestry, agrivoltaics, prairie restoration, seed saving, and year-round cultivation, adapting to the climate crisis within a regenerative framework.

To support this project, contact Neely Snyder at neely@dreamofwildhealth.org and visit DreamofWildHealth.org

Fund the Final Phase of our Capital Campaign Project!

In 2020, with support from our committed funders, we purchased 20 additional acres of farmland near our existing 10-acre site.

Since then, we've built:

- Roadways and utilities
- A state-of-the-art greenhouse for season extension
- An outdoor pavilion and ceremonial fire pit
- Incubator plots of land for future emerging farmers

We've also planted more than 6,000 food-producing plants, medicinal plants, and trees!

We need your support to fund:

- A 5,525 sq ft community center with a commercial teaching kitchen, community room, offices, and processing space.
- the addition of a pole barn for farming equipment storage and processing

You can help us make it to our next milestone.

To support this project, contact Neely Snyder at neely@dreamofwildhealth.org

Dream of Wild Health

OUR HISTORY & VISION

Dream of Wild Health is an intertribal nonprofit, operating a 30-acre farm in Hugo, Minnesota with an office in Minneapolis. Our mission is to restore health and well-being in the Native community by recovering knowledge of and access to healthy Indigenous foods, medicines and lifeways.

We accomplish this through community outreach programs, events, and collaborations. Each year, we impact around 15,000 people, including 2,000 youth.

Artist rendering of the greenhouse pavilion

DreamOfWildHealth.org

1508 E Franklin Ave., Suite
100 Minneapolis, MN 55404

Farm: 16085 & 15920
Jeffrey Ave. Hugo, MN
55038-9334